Celebrating Green Careers Week 6th-11th November 2023

Last year the theme of our careers days was Green Careers. In our lessons we discussed this emerging sector at length and we highlighted how jobs in this sector will grow enormously. To mark the second Green Careers Week, we will be celebrating everything Green Careers.

Around 60% of young people are 'worried' or 'extremely worried' about climate change (University of Bath Global Survey 2021) and so it is important that we highlight the amazing career pathways students can follow to improve the future climate.

If you are a parent and want to know more about Green Careers, why not download the Parents Guide to Green Careers Week which covers everything from work experience, how to study for careers in the Green Sector and job highlights. You can download your copy here

Careers support for neurodivergent students

Neurodivergence covers a range of conditions such as dyslexia, autism and ADHD and living with these conditions has caused a movement for justice for everyone who suffers with them. The movement promotes acceptance and inclusion for all individuals and the careers department work closely with our neurodivergent students to help them acknowledge their strengths and areas for development, help students to assess their learning styles and discuss strategies and solutions emerging in technologies.

The careers department can help with research and explore different apprenticeships, post-16 options and disability-confident employers, support students with application processes, support the student with communication needs and to give general advice and support.
